

*The greatest spiritual danger in grief is not
our despair or our anger,
but our surrender.*

We check out of our friendships,
out of our community,
out of our lives.

Even more tragically,
we check out of our walks with God.
Such withdrawal is understandable,
but it can also destroy our souls.

While surrendering is easier, it cuts us off from the very things meant to give us life.

ERIC TONJES

EITHER WAY, WE'LL BE ALL RIGHT